Regular Meeting Town Council Held Last Week

At the regular December meeting of the town council Mayor Stamer, Deputy Mayor R. Wilson and Councillors M. Murray, H. Hunter and N. Anderson were present.

It was brought out at the meeting that when the fire alarm blows people cause the brigade considerable delay by plugging the telephone lines taking where the fire is. To overcome this the council instructed the secretary to inform central that when an alarm was sent in to inform R. S. Haakynse where the blaze is. Since Mr. Haakynse lives directly across the street from the fire hall he could inform the brigade the location of the fire.

The report of Mr. Johnston of the department of public health was read and accepted on the motion of Councillor Hunter. Mr. M. Murray and Mr. Johnston were asked to attend the first meeting of the council in the New Year.

A letter from Messrs. Davis and Associates was read and discussed. It was decided to advise them to go ahead with the $3,500 proposition in regard to putting the electric pump at the top of the water tower in commission. Also with the proposal to extend the water system to the Oliver corner in the west end of the town and to install a hydrant there.

It was decided to enforce the stipulation that any person who takes water from the tap of some other regular user for domestic purposes pay at the rate of two dollars a month be enforced.

On motion of Councillors Hunter and Murray it was resolved that fire alarm signs and no parking signs be painted on the fire hall doors and the police be notified to enforce the regulation.

The next regular meeting of the council will be held on Thursday, December 29. This will be the last meeting for the year 1949.

Alberta History

(By F. W. GERSHAW)

In the late sixties, traders from Ft. Benton crossed into Canada and built Fort Whiskey-up in Southern Alberta. This fort was the headquarters for the whiskey traders and wild men of the time. It was a centre for crime and, at times, the stockade would be filled with fighting, drunken Indians.

Rev. John McDougall on one occasion went into the fort to see about fording the river. He was dismounting when he was seized and a loud "How do pardners?" sounded in his ears. Turning, he saw a fellow far advanced in liquor who jerked him across the square and up to the counter of the bar.

This bar was made of two huge logs, one on top of the other with the upper side of the top log faced smooth. The new friend called for drinks and the bartender put two tin cups all battered and rusty on the log and poured liquor into them. The minister would not drink and the other cursed and abused him shamefully but finally took the two drinks himself.

Just then, one of the company said "let us shoot for the drinks" and bang went his pistol. He put the bank shell into the hole his bullet had made in the log. Others did the same and shooting became general.

He followed them was up to the group with a long knife in his hand. He said he would like a fight as things were getting too quiet.

He had been on a protracted drunk and looked wild, haggard, bleary-eyed and swollen faced. He noticed the stranger and made himself very offensive in his drunken manner.

Suddenly he came out that the stranger was the Rev. John McDougall. The wild man at once changed his conduct. He profusely apologised. He was very humble and ashamed saying that his own brother had been a Zion singer. Nothing now was too good for the minister. He was given the best meal that could be obtained and there he left for the fort performed a Christian marriage ceremony and preached a sermon.

Early Puritans celebrated Christmas about the middle of the 19th century.

England's sea power came into being with the defeat of the Spanish Armada.

News Items of Local Interest

Pete Deshayes has been confined to a Calgary hospital for the past week.

During the past few days of cold weather great progress has been made in making ice at both the arena and curling rinks.

Mike Ferby, age 78, who has been a resident here for the past 3 years died last week. He came to Canada from Austria some 40 years ago. The funeral took place last week with Capt. Cartmell of the Salvation Army officiating after which interment was made in Eventide Cemetery.

The Legion boys held a bingo night last Saturday evening in their hall. There was a good attendance and a joyful time was had. Happy were the boys and girls who walked off with turkey or a big hamper. The Legion boys are going to have another bingo next Saturday night so this is an excellent opportunity to get your turkey cheap.

The A.P.F.W.U. recently elected officers for the coming year as follows: President, Mrs. N. McMillan; Mrs. P. Stemmans vice-president; Mrs. J. K. Green secretary; publicity director, Mrs. J. K. Green; treasurer, Mrs. J. K. Green; and Mrs. J. K. Green; and Mrs. J. K. Green.

While a large percentage of the cranberries for the festive table this Christmas will be imported from the U. S. a good portion will have the origin in cultivated bogs in Nova Scotia. In this area, wild cranberry bogs have been taken over from nature and cultivated with the care and tenderness bestowed upon an orchard.

Regular Meeting Ladies Auxiliary

The regular meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion was held last Thursday evening in the Legion Hall. The president Mrs. R. Oliver occupied the chair.

The meeting was informed that the W.A. had realized $44.18 from a recent dance.

Five parcels were sent overseas to Lancaster House, a children's orphanage. The Auxiliary wish to convey their special thank you to all who in any way made it possible to send these parcels.

A report as to the number of war veterans residing at Eventide Home was given by Mrs. R. Haakynse. There are ten veterans there at the present time. These veterans will receive a Christmas parcel from the Women's Auxiliary at Christmas time.

New members accepted to the Women's Auxiliary are as follows: Mrs. T. Haaketh, Mrs. K. S. Williams, Mrs. S. Hamilton, Mrs. Wilson Schellen, Mrs. E. Anderson, Mrs. G. Wilson and Mrs. K. McPhee.

Eastern Star Install Officers

The Eastern Star Chapter held their installation ceremony recently when Sister Margaret Bell associate grand matron of the Grand Chapter of Alberta O.E.S. and Sister Velma McLean installed the officers for Gleichlen Chapter for the coming year: Worship Matron, Sister Dorothy Kofoed; worthy patron, Bro. W. H. James; associate worthy matron, Sister Margaret Brown; associate patron, Bro. H. Brown; conductress, Sister Mary Margaret Kofoed; conductress, Sister Minnie McLean; secretary, Sister Betty Wilson; treasurer, Sister Margaret Kofoed; marshal, Sister E. James; chaplain, Sister Myrtle Morgan; organist, Sister Alice Bain; Adm. Sister Fay Pugh; Ruth, Sister Ralphene Bolinger; Martha, Sister Adeline Sniderman; Electra, Sister Florence McMullen; warden, Sister Bertha Haakynse; sentinel, Sister Anna Umbel.

There were visitors present from the Husar Chapter. The Worshipful Matron Sister D. Kofoed, was presented with a bouquet and Sisters Bell, V. McLean and D. Kofoed were presented with earrings.

In order to convert a wild bog into a paying producer, an investment as high as $1,000 per acre may be required. There are problems of ditching, soil conditioning, weed control, sand supplies and proximity to markets to take into consideration. Swamps are first leveled and dyked to make it possible to flood the land for the winter season and during spring and fall when frost may damage blossoms and fruit. Ditches provide for rapid drainage when the need for flooding is past and help keep the water table at the desired level. Sand top dressing keeps down weeds and prevents the soil from drying out too rapidly in the summer.

The Women's Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion held a very successful bazaar, bake sale and tea in the Legion Hall Saturday afternoon. A large crowd attended and the proceeds were over $285. The doll was won by Ernest Johnson. The door prize went to Miss Jessie Eberley, while the crocheted basket with flowers went to Master James Brown. The ladies extend their sincere thanks to all who in any way helped to make this undertaking the success it was.

Ask For Action

Canada's seven hundred weekly newspapers represent all shades of political and editorial opinion.

They are an example of the working of free speech and of free, competitive enterprise. Unlike their daily sisters, they boast no "chains," no would-be barons of the press.

It is therefore, only on very rare occasions that they agree on a particular policy or procedure. And when such agreement is reached, Canada's governmental authorities have always given them a considerable hearing.

That is the case now as the 504 member papers of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association and the federal government to revise its sales tax policy.

The weekly newspapers of Canada collectively are big business, the biggest single influence on opinion in the Dominion. Individually, however, they are small businesses, owned and operated, in the main, by small business men.

They live by advertising and consumer publications financed by private advertising the surest safeguards of the freedom of the press.

Yet with the relatively small circulations, they are faced with very strong competition for the advertising dollar.

The government's own child, the CBC, now shares a portion of the weeklies' former revenue and is one of the funds derived from tax receipts.

Magazines, of general or farm content, regularly undercut town and village newspaper subscription prices in the hope of building giant circulations and thus attracting advertising dollars which might find their way to the rural press.

Weekend newspapers, not a few of whom feed on sensation in their drive for mass circulations, also boast to advertisers that they cover rural Canada and that there is no need to "use the weeklies."

The weekly press is not afraid of this type of competition. Weekly newspapers play a vital role in the life of the smaller communities. But weekly paper publishers do object to taxes which neither the CBC nor the weeklies pay.

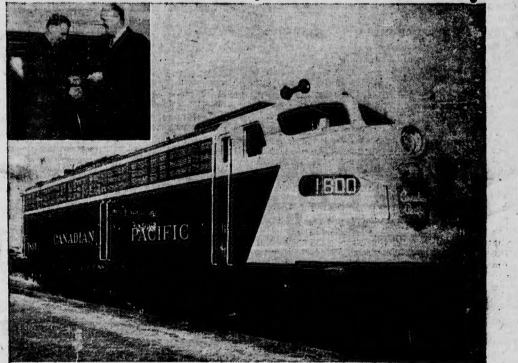

On every ton of paper used by the weekly papers of Canada there is an annual sales tax payable to the federal government.

There is no similar tax, however, charged on paper used in Canadian magazines or American magazines sold in this country.

There is no similar tax payable on paper used in comic books or pulp fiction magazines.

Yet all these media are advertising competitors of Canada's weekly newspapers.

That this situation doesn't make sense is obvious. It is equally obvious that the members of Canada's federal legislature will realize the need for equal in sales tax application. This discriminatory legislation must go.

Shown above is Canada's first streamlined diesel passenger locomotive, Canadian Pacific's 1800. Delivered to the CPR by General Motors, the 2,250 horsepower locomotive was one of the first of the new S-8 design to come off the assembly line of the G. M. plant at LaGrange, Illinois. She will be joined shortly by two sister engines, completely dieselising Montreal to Boston passenger trains. Freight service on the line, between Montreal and Wells River, Vt., has already been dieselized. N. R. Crump (left inset), vice-president of the C.P.R. is shown receiving a gold reverse handle from C. R. Osborn, vice-president of General Motors, at the ceremonies when the giant diesel was turned over. Mr. Osborn said that the emblem was symbolic of the inauguration of diesel-powered passenger service in Canada.

YOU CAN still find people who "don't believe in banks" ... who keep their cash in old coffee pots, or hide it in the woodpile, or carry it around.

But most folk nowadays keep their money in bank accounts. They can get it whenever they want it; and they can pay their bills by cheque. Canadians have more than seven million such deposit accounts. In terms of Canada's adult population, that makes it practically unanimous.

The banks, in turn, know they must earn this confidence by giving you the best service they know how.

Today you can take your account to any bank you choose. And what is in your bank book is strictly between you and your bank. It is your own private business.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

A Quiet But Pretty Wedding

By M. J. COLLINS

"Oh! Isn't he the darling!" Peggy, my sister, exclaimed when she really saw our time-and-a-half-year-old son, Rick, held under her nose, so to speak, all the time, but there was an excuse for her. Peggy was to be married in a few minutes. Young Rick was wearing a white satin suit and it was my express job, to see that he kept it clean. Peggy had thought it would be cute for Rick to be the ring bearer and the wife agreed with her right away, so I kept my opinion to myself. Well, it would soon be all over.

The bride party were in the vestibule of the church waiting for the wedding march to begin. Mary, my wife, was making a few last-minute adjustments to Peggy's wedding dress.

"Now you know what I'm supposed to do, son!" I asked sitting down on my heels. He nodded his blonde head vigorously. "I'm to carry the ring on the cushion to the front of the church, and I'm not to say a word." He rattled the words off quickly.

"Oh, leave him alone!" my wife said impatiently, "or you'll have him all rattled. He knows what to do. We had enough rehearsal to know everything easy. And," she continued, "I'm better hurry to get to Rick's hand to start up the aisle."

I could see the wedding party coming down the aisle out of the corner of my eye. Bill, the bridegroom, and his best man were peering nervously through the drapes at the vestry door waiting to converge on the bride. I wondered if the fellow in the knees like I did the day Mary and I were married. A few seconds later the sonorous voice of Reverend Middleton filled the church as he began the wedding ceremony. Rick was doing his part like an expert; in fact everything was going along perfectly. Dad had gone back to his seat at the right moment without prompting, although I could sense my wife, who was the matron of honor, getting ready to dig him in the ribs if he got muddled. Rick was standing to one side holding the silver cushion steadily in front of him. The best man reached out for the ring and Rick suddenly started to cough and choke, dropping the cushion. My wife moved quickly to him and pounded him vigorously on the back. Finally he managed to gasp, "I swallowed it!" I think everyone in the church heard him. My wife gave a frightened little cry and grabbing him up in her arms began to pound harder.

"Where's my wedding ring?" Peggy asked, not seeming to understand what had happened. The whole family crowded up on the wedding party.

"Hold him up by the heels and shake him, it might come out," someone suggested.

"Thump him a little harder,"

"I'm only trying to get married," Peggy wailed.

"He swallowed it!" my wife said, "we'd better get him to a doctor immediately."

"Maybe he only choked on a hair," the best man said hopefully, "I almost did when I was a kid. Let's look on the bright side for the ring."

Every available man dropped to his knees and began to scratch the floor minutely. "Here, use this!" My wife pulled out her wedding ring and pushed it into Bill's hand. "Harry, Dan, and let's get this young man to the doctor's." Taking the new quiet

Best Place For A Ring Is In Man's Pocket (7)

Rick out of her arms, we hurried out of the church. "Rick's all right, Daddy," he insisted, but I wasn't too sure of that. Behind us the bride party returned to see for Peggy and Bill married.

Our doctor's office is at the other end of town, but since it's only a small place we reached it in a few minutes. Just as we were getting out of the Rick took something out of his pocket.

"Oh, my gosh!" my wife exclaimed loudly, "here's the ring! He had it in his pocket all the time." She turned to him relieved, but angry.

"You had boy, telling me like that. Scaring everyone half to death!"

"Hey, don't!" I stopped her. "Maybe he did swallow something. What did you do with the candy I gave you in church?"

"I gave him a perfect lump he can't see if he ever gets started."

"Peggy will never forgive us but why, I know to know, did he put the ring in his pocket?"

"I gave him the place for a ring was in a man's pocket." Rick nodded his head with emphasis.

"Well, I didn't like the tone of the wife's voice. Just how are you going to explain that, Dan?"

"Don't you think it would be better if we returned to the wedding?"

"No!" my wife said. "Our local newspaper said something about the Howland-Wright wedding being quiet and pretty. The reporter that wrote that would have to be blind and deaf, but what could I do? . . . my wife suggested very sweetly just how I was to write it."

OTTAWA—"I remember one time . . .," began Senator Walter Aulentine of Rosetown, Sask., as he set about relating the Ottawa Fish and Game Association with a succession of lively and informative sporting anecdotes.

His stories told at the Museum ranged from boyhood with a bamboo pole in Perth, to Big Trout Lake in Prince Albert National Park where the waters in his day contained no smaller lake trout than a 16-pounder.

For the many persons who looked upon Saskatoon as a dry prairie province, Senator Aulentine revealed the fish and game paradise in the north, claiming for Lac La Ronge that it was the greatest fishing lake on the North American continent.

He featured the conservation projects now supported in Ontario with the work of "Ducks Unlimited," a society of American sportsmen who came to the rescue of the Saskatchewan town of Plenty. The lake dried up, the ducks and geese winged their way no more; until Ducks Unlimited began damming operations — then there were plenty of birds once more.

Senator Aulentine's five-point plan for conservation, with which he concluded, was: Stricter enforcement; sterner penalties; more sanctuaries; conservation education in the schools; and the enlistment of the women's interest and support.

He was introduced—and his camp-fried filleted pickers highly commended—by Frank Wall, a companion on past fishing trips.

In a brief address President Erskine Smith said the association's 17th year had been as successful as the predecessors, and urged the continued protection of game fish and wild life, "now more than ever necessary."

The association had grown steadily since a membership 500 in 1922, he revealed, to its present size, 1,100 strong.

Correspondence

Editor The Call:

I was never so disappointed in an "Old Timers' dance" as I was in Gleichen's 25th Annual Old Timers'.

They had the best music that money can buy in this part of the country, but where was our master of ceremonies, our floor manager, and other officials?

Another thing they didn't have was a Old Timers' Dance. I believe I counted seven old time pieces, the rest was modern. No wonder I couldn't find any old timers.

The supper served was wholesome and nourishing but should have had a woman's touch to finish it off.

There is talk of doing all this next year. What happened this year?

A YOUNG OLD TIMER

DO YOU CARVE TURKIES?

For the benefit of fathers who may have to operate on another turkey at Christmas dinner we set down a few pointers freshly gleaned from carving a turkey not long ago.

The first rule is, be nonchalant. Disregard the family's heckling. You may feel like during one and all to try it themselves, but don't make the mistake of doing so. Junior may have been practicing in secret, as he did with the carving. It wouldn't strengthen your diplomatic position to have him show you up. Besides, even if you aren't really head of the family, sitting at the head of the table helps preserve the appearance.

As to systems: We belong to the pragmatic school. Plunge in and let the dressing and ornaments fall where they will. But if you had trouble on serious occasions you may wish to try a new theory which turns the bird on its side—facing the other way. This seems to us unnecessarily unorthodox. So do standing, but such a posture may give you more feeling of being on top of the job. Our own prime secret is preliminary dismantling. Once you have pulled a leg and wing off—and if you won't pull with very little help from a knife you have a valid complaint against the stock—little remains but slicing.

Of course, there are a few matters such as unsuiting the combination to the dressing repository and discovering who wants dark and who wants white, not to mention finding time to get a bite yourself before he second round begins. But if you handle little things like that you'd better order Christmas dinner at a restaurant.

Wind must travel at least a mile a minute to be a hurricane.

"Blind as a bat" is an incorrect saying, since bats can see.

World's Champion Valve-in-Head Engine
The trend's all to valve-in-head design for more efficient and economical high-compression engines. But Chevrolet's proved and extra-efficient engine is the only valve-in-head engine in Chevrolet's field!

Curved Windshield with Panoramic Visibility
That large, smoothly curved windshield sweeps back to narrower corner posts to provide a safer view ahead and at the sides. Alone among low-priced cars, Chevrolet has the functional beauty of a curved windshield!

Extra Economical to Own and Operate
It's the lowest priced line in its field. It's the outstandingly economical performer. It's Canada's most-wanted money car—new as used—traditionally worth more when you trade. Extra economy in every way!

Fisher Body Styling and Luxury
Long, low lines... smooth, graceful curves... conveniences like Push-Button Door Handles... decorative interior with luxurious fabrics and fittings and "Five-Door Drive"—superbly styled Body by Fisher!

Certi-Safe Hydraulic Brakes
Chevrolet's exclusive brake design is more outstanding than ever for winter safety. And new Dual-Life, rivetless brake linings—last up to twice as long. That means both extra safety and extra economy.

5-Inch Wide-Base Wheels
You get the widest rim in the low-price field—plus extra low-pressure tires as standard equipment on all models. That's another important reason for the extra smooth, soft and stable Chevrolet ride!

Centre-Point Steering
Steering control is centered between the wheels to give you amazing new ease and sureness of control with minimum driver fatigue. You get Centre-Point Steering only on Chevrolet and on higher-priced cars!

Longer, Heavier, with Wider Tread
It looks like it... it rides like it... it is the BIG car in the low-price field! With its extra low Chevrolet gives you more comfort, road-steadiness, safety.

Fisher Unisteel Body Construction
Slam the door and hear the "steel" that's in the door! That's the steel that's in the door! That's the steel that's in the door! That's the steel that's in the door! That's the steel that's in the door!
